- ✓ Research and development in aromatherapy science as a part of complementary medicines(Cosmeceutical).

Organic & Natural formulation

✓ No synthetic preservatives (Natural preservatives patent owned)

Ethylparaben, butylparaben, methylparaben, propylparaben and etc. : So many products contain them that they build up in our bodies, where they can act on our hormones, and have been found to be estrogen-disruptors. Washed off in the shower, parabens accumulate in waterways and also disrupt the hormonal system of animals who drink or swim in that water.

DMDM Hydantoin and Imidazolidinyl Urea : Although not suspected to be environmental toxins, they are known human immune system toxicants as well as human skin toxicants. They work by releasing formaldehyde into the products.

Methylchloroisothiazolinone and Methylisothiazolinone : they cause allergies and attack the nervous system

✓ No synthetic fragrances

Any ingredient, included phthalates, can be hidden behind the word Fragrance: cosmetic industries are not required to divulge all their ingredients and play the trade secret card. Fragrances cause allergies, are linked to cancer and can attack the nervous system.

✓ No PEG (Polyethylene Glycol)

Found in surfactants, lotions, cleansing agents, emulsifiers, skin conditioners. The number next to PEG indicates the molecular weight of the compounds that make up PEG. PEG is a toxic contaminant and possible carcinogen. It should not be used on damaged skin as it can cause itch and rash. It also contains various harmful impurities, including lead.

✓ No Sodium Lauryl and Laureth Sulfate (SLS and SLES)

Found in shampoo, body/face cleanser. They can enter the heart, brain and liver through the skin, where they can accumulate. Moreover, SLS and SLES react with many other ingredients to form nitrosamines (or nitrates), which are potential carcinogenics.

Used in oaps, deodorants, cosmetics, and toothpastes. Antibacterial and antifungal agents

Organic & Natural formulation

✓ No Propylene Glycol /Butylene Glycol

Found in many beauty creams, cosmetics and cleansers, Propylene Glycol can cause skin rashes and contact dermatitis, and has been shown to cause damage to the kidneys and liver.

✓ No Mineral Oil/Petroleum jelly(Vaseline)

Derived from petroleum (crude oil), mineral oil is commonly found as a main ingredient of face and body creams and cosmetics. Baby oil is 100% mineral oil! It coats the skin like a plastic film, clogging pores and stopping the skin from eliminating toxins, which can lead to acne and other skin disorders. Other petroleum based ingredients include paraffin wax, paraffin oil and petrolatum. The European Union has banned petrolatum from use in cosmetics.

✓ No synthetic colors

Synthetic color or FD&C colors are mostly derived from coal tar. Many have been banned from food by the FDA for various reasons: carcinogenicity, allergy inducing, general toxicity, etc. A number caused illnesses in children. They have been shown in clinical studies to cause various types of cancer.

✓ No DEA(Diethanolamine (DEA)

A common wetting agent used in shampoos, skin care and cosmetics. It creates a rich lather in shampoos and produces a nice consistency in skin care. On its own, it is harmless, but when combined with other ingredients in a shampoo, cream or lotion, it reacts to produce nitrosodiethanolamine (NDEA), an extremely carcinogenic compound which can easily be absorbed through the skin. It has been linked to stomach, bladder and intestinal cancers. Ex) Cocamide DEA or Cocamide Diethanolamine, DEA Lauryl Sulfate or Diethanolamine Lauryl Sulfate, Lauramide DEA or Lauramide Diethanolamine, Linoleamide DEA or Linoleamide Diethanolamine Oleamide DEA or Oleamide Diethanolamine

✓ No Alcohol

Found in skin toner, body mist and perfumes. The bad types of alcohol dry out your skin, irritate it, and cause inflammation. Alcohol can make acne worse, though, because it causes inflammation, which inflames acne, and it dries out the top layers of skin, which could hurt your skin's natural ability to shed skin properly and to keep the pores open, thus leading to more clogged pores.
